Good morning, all. This morning Luciano contacted us asking to conduct a walkthrough of OC for a newly added event element.

On Friday, December 5, Eric Combs, Carpool Creative, will be on site to capture interviews with members of the CIF advisory council. They will be filming in the House Chamber through out Friday afternoon. Luciano is drafting the interview questions today & tomorrow. The videographer was easy to work with and he has all the info that he needs regarding arrival and set up.

Additionally, the videographer will be filming the Saturday session to be held from 11 am – noon. Luciano referred to this as the portion that describes how the CIF came to be. He will moderate the session and has asked for the table to be set for a panel of 4. While we were talking, he took a call from a regent, to whom he referred as “Chris” (Hensley?). When he returned, he reiterated that this will be a very important segment to record and that’s what the call was about. There will be a question & answer session, with a mic passed through out the audience. Shereena and I reassured him that we understood and would connect all the appropriate parties.

I have connected the videographer with Ben Held & Adam Burden so that they may address his specific questions about filming with the new Senate Chamber equipment. It seemed that Carpool Creative is taking on the project because the Office of Strategic Communications is unable to accommodate the last-minute request.

Regards,
Liz
